RUNAWAY SHEEP

Do you like roses? Anne likes roses. Her mother has a rose garden. Her roses win prizes at the flower show. They are very pretty.

"Eat your banana," Anne's mother told her one day. Anne hated bananas. This banana was brown. Brown bananas are the worst. Anne took her banana and went outside. She didn't go very far, just to her mother's rose garden. What did she see? A runaway sheep, eating her mother's roses!

"Hello," Anne said to the sheep. "Would you like a good banana?" The sheep ate her banana. This made Anne happy. Anne went to the house for another banana. The sheep followed her.

"Anne, don't bring sheep into the house," her mother said.

"He was eating your roses," Anne said. "The red ones are his favorite."

"I will call the farmer," her mother said. The farmer came for his sheep. The woman next door saw it. She was a reporter.

"I am going to write a story for the newspaper," she told Anne. She took Anne's picture. "How did you catch the sheep?" she asked Anne.

"First, I gave him a banana. Then he was my friend."

The woman wrote the story. She took Anne's picture with the sheep. "I will call the story Girl Catches Runaway Sheep," she told Anne.
